

Anushka Rose

Coordinator for Research and Documentation

Centre for Labour Research and Action

Bio

Anushka is a trained as a Development Practitioner, with a specialization in Action Research and she has been critically engaging with the diverse ethnic communities across Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh, Rajasthan and Gujarat to foster critical thinking around the idea of development. Since 2018, Anushka has been working as a Coordinator for Research and Documentation with Centre for Labour Research and Action - an organization that works on ensuring access to labour rights and entitlements of migrant Adivasi workers. Her role is particularly focused on anchoring, conceptualising, and implementing research projects and studies focused on the condition of migrant workers employed in the unorganized sectors of the building and construction industry, factory units, sugarcane harvesting, brick kilns, and agricultural work across the state of Gujarat.
