

Swarnima Kriti

Fellow in Action Research, Centre for Development Practice
Ambedkar University Delhi

Bio

Swarnima Kriti is a Fellow in Action Research at the Centre for Development Practice, Ambedkar University, Delhi (www.cdp.res.in). She is working on questions of gender, education and eco-sensitive agriculture in contexts of adivasi life-worlds and worldviews in Dhamtari district, Chhattisgarh with a group of subaltern women who call themselves Chinhari: The Young India (www.chinhari.co.in). Her papers include (i) “Deconstructing Theory-Practice: Rethinking Methodology”, in the Journal of International Women’s Studies (<https://vc.bridgew.edu/jiws/vol20/iss3/7/>) and (ii) “Chinhari – The Young India: The Praxis of Feminizing Democracy”, forthcoming in State of Democracy in India: Essays on Life and Politics in Contemporary Times (Ed. M. Ray).